DEAR CURREY CUSTOMERS,

---

Welcome to a new era of Currey & Company catalogs! It's been a while since we published a full catalog, and this one comes with a big change – a move to our new vertical format. We are pleased to offer a 100% complete and up-to-date book. It's been since the Spring of 2019 that we published a "big book" and we are all feeling ready to welcome this one.

To complement this new catalog, we hope you will visit our website, where our team is steadily making improvements to your experience. Most recently, we've added stock status badges to our thumbnail pages and an in-stock filter to make your buying experience easier, as well as expanded product details and imagery. These small, yet impactful changes make the website into an essential partner to the book now in your hands.

The past year and a half have been extraordinary, life-changing times. We must express our thanks for your support during such a deeply uncertain moment. Your unwavering support for our organization allowed Currey & Company to manage through the pandemic with all our people fully employed and healthy. We're so grateful to arrive at this more optimistic moment and hope to serve you well in the future.

Sincerely,

Brownlee Currey

'20S CONTEMPORARY

---

This softer approach to modern has emerged as one of the most broadly accepted trends of the 2020s. Referencing the curves and luxury materials of contemporary furnishings from the '70s and the '90s, this look is decidedly softer and warmer. Colors reflect the color palette of the 1920s with creams and soft pastels, warm browns and caramel. Shagreen and velvet, pearlized finishes and brass, tassels and fringe trim details are all employed to create this look. The refinement and constraint with which these elements are used, along with a strong feminine edge, are what makes this look feel so current.

A celebration of shape and relaxed feeling of luxury.

BLACK & NATURAL

---

Mankind's use of natural materials to make things dates to at least 8000 BC. Fast forward to the 2020s, and these materials in their natural state still feel very relevant. Rope, rattan, raffia, water hyacinth and coconut shells are used to create modern home furnishings that give a nod to the 1970s when natural materials were key to the style vernacular. Metals are also natural materials, so accents of brass and wrought iron – also in their natural state – enhance the designs. The warm tones of rope and rattan are additionally complemented by accents of black. Look for this bold combination to bring a vibrant and dramatic flair to interiors.

MINERAL WATER

The relaxing nature of water and the many shades of blue are the inspiration for this color trend. Looking at the earth from above, the blue planet inspires a desire to explore beyond our own earthly boundaries. Accents of silver leaf, black and white add some punch to the mix, and there is a contemporary edge to this combination instilled by the use of mixed materials. Wood and woven leather, recycled glass and wrought iron, hand-blown glass and porcelains with soft glazes – all of these are elements of Mineral Water. Various crystals and stones add sparkle and a healing element to designs that are calm and cool, but not at all cold.

SUPER NATURE

---

Mother Nature and all her elements are celebrated here. All forms of flora –whether they be tropical or from more temperate climes – are featured in stylized designs of everything from lighting and accessories to furniture. Whether it be life-size brass banana leaves, or gold-leaf eucalyptus, or hand-painted ceramic flowers – all add a touch of nature to any interior style from formal traditional to Bohemian to slick contemporary. And fauna is not completely left out here, either. Look for whimsical animal and even a few human elements to add extra “life” to a space.

IN NEUTRAL

---

Both classic and contemporary, neutral combinations in interiors are never out of style. There just seems to be something about a neutral look that makes you feel right at home. Decidedly warm tones tell the story. Textural natural materials such as travertine, stone, rope, wood and woven leather combine with warm shades of white, cream and brown to generate this soothing look. Accent details are given a boost with gold leaf or brass touches. Texture is a critical element of this neutral look, and you may find it in rough ceramic gazes and hand-thrown terracotta, as well as hammered metal, and steel-brushed and pickled wood finishes.

MODERN FARMHOUSE

The farmhouse vernacular has been a part of American style since the beginning. The 2020s have brought a very clean, modern and graphic point of view to this look, boiling it down to its simplest forms and elements. A combination of industrial, traditional and mid-century design is used to create the current version of this look. Texture is brought in through natural materials like iron, rope, rattan and rough-glazed terracotta. The combination of black and white creates a bold feeling to this otherwise somewhat understated look. Black and white is a classic, and it is easy to add another color to give it some variety through lamps, accessories and other accents.
